A PLANTING OF RHODODENDRONS

RHODODENDRONS

For Spring 1925

It is useless to dwell upon the beauties of this magnificent evergreen shrub. All are familiar with its broad, glossy, dark green foliage and superb trusses of showy flowers of gorgeous tints and colors.

Culture.—They flower best in peat soil, and, like Azaleas, are most effective when grouped. In preparing a bed, if possible, locate where it will be partly sheltered from the intense heat in Summer and from cutting winds in Winter. The bed should be prepared with old sod, good leafmold or peat, which prevents the fine, hair-like roots from drying out in hot Summer weather, from which cause many plants are lost. Heavy mulching in Summer is an excellent preventive, and in dry weather the beds should be thoroughly watered. Pinch off all seed pods after flowering in order to get good buds for the next season. In Fall mulch the beds a foot or more with leaves, and if these can be left to decay, it is advisable to do so. Will not thrive if lime is in the soil.

Rhododendron and Kalmia latifolia are two of the best plants in the evergreen line for grouping or planting under a border of large trees or shrubs, or planting in the woodland.

These are offered by the hundred of the various sizes.

If taken in carlots there will be no charge for packing.

If taken in less than carlots then there would be a charge for packing additional at cost.

Price is at point of shipment.
